

Vikrum Vora, Investor
Soros Fund Management

Vikrum Vora is an investor and research analyst at Soros Fund Management, where he plays a leading role in the firm's energy and utilities portfolio. He focuses on deploying long-term family office capital across public and private markets, spanning the full energy value chain and capital structure. His work includes assessing policy and regulatory dynamics, evaluating structural shifts in energy demand and delivery, and underwriting investments across global regulated utilities, power infrastructure, and adjacent industrial technologies.

Prior to joining Soros, Vikrum spent 15 years at Goldman Sachs, most recently as a portfolio manager and research analyst at Goldman Sachs Asset Management (GSAM). There, he covered developed market utilities, power, electrical equipment, and oil & gas as part of the firm's global fundamental equity franchise. Earlier roles included equity/options trading, prime brokerage, and consumer retail research.

Vikrum began his career in public service, working as a congressional staffer and as a research assistant at the U.S. Institute for Research on Labor, Employment, and the Economy (IRLEE), where he focused on regional economic development and labor policy. He holds a B.A. in Political Science from the University of Michigan.